SUBJECT: Revisions to the Special Admissions Rules; Request to Circulate for Public Comment

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

As a result of the Board of Trustees’ discussions during the January 2018 annual strategic planning session, the Board revised Objective q (previously objective i) of Goal 2 of the State Bar’s 2017-2022 Strategic Plan to direct that Bar staff: “No later than December 31, 2018, review special admissions rules to determine whether changes are needed to support the goal of increased access to legal services or for other reasons, and implement needed changes.” The primary change in this objective was the clear direction to review these rules in the context of supporting the Bar’s goal of increased access to legal services.

Staff examined the California Rules of Court and the Rules of the State Bar for special admissions to identify any aspects of the rules which may present unnecessary roadblocks to gain special admission status which negatively impacted the provision of legal services to indigent California residents. Staff developed rule proposals to support greater access to legal services, while maintaining public protection. The revisions for amendments to the Rules of Court and the Rules of the State Bar regarding Registered In-House Counsel (RIHC) are Attachments A and B; Registered Legal Services Attorneys (RLSA) are Attachments C and D; and Registered Foreign Legal Consultants (RFLC) are Attachments E and F. No amendments were deemed necessary for other special admissions categories.

At the direction of the Chair and Vice-Chair of the Programs Committee, staff also reviewed whether a new special admissions program would be appropriate for military spouses. State Bar staff reviewed the national model rule and modified it to align with the multijurisdictional practice programs, in the level of attorney oversight, ensuring to incentivize bar exam passage and encouraging pro bono services in the state. The proposed Registered Military Spouse Attorney rules appear in Attachments G and H. Proposed amendments to Appendix A to the Rules of the State Bar, which sets forth the fees for the programs, is updated to reflect the changes made to the Rules of the State Bar and are Attachments I, J and K.
At its February 2018 meeting, the Board adopted amendments to the strategic plan based on the discussions at the January meeting. The revised strategic plan now includes, as objective q of Goal 2 that Bar staff: “No later than December 31, 2018, review special admissions rules to determine whether changes are needed to support the goal of increased access to legal services or for other reasons, and implement needed changes.”

Special Admissions rules govern the extent to which those not formally admitted to the State Bar of California may practice in California. They include the following categories:

Rules of Court, rule 9.46 governs Registered In-House Counsel (RIHC), who are non-California attorneys from other U.S. jurisdictions who meet certain qualifications. They may register with the State Bar and are then allowed to practice as in-house counsel in California for a qualifying institution. The work of RIHC is limited to providing legal services in California only to the qualifying institution that employs them. RIHC are not permitted to make court appearances in California state courts or to provide personal or individual representation to any customers, shareholders, owners, partners, officers, employees, servants, or agents of the qualifying institution.

Registered Legal Services Attorneys (RLSA), governed by Rules of Court, rule 9.45, must register with the State Bar and work under the supervision of a California attorney, but are employed by a California-based organization that provides legal services in the state. The rules pertaining to both RLSA and RIHC require that the attorney is well-versed in local laws, applicable case law and rules regarding ethical conduct. Both are required to apply for moral character determination. The Rules of the State Bar allow out-of-state attorneys to qualify for both RIHC and RLSA.

Rules of Court, rule 9.44, governing Registered Foreign Legal Consultants (RFLC), permits attorneys licensed in another country (and who are in good standing in that jurisdiction) to provide legal advice in California exclusively regarding the law of their foreign jurisdiction.

In 2011, the Military Spouses J.D. Network was established to aid the spouses of military service members in finding employment as attorneys in the state or territory in which their active military spouse has been assigned. Currently, there are 30 states and U.S. territories that have incorporated a special admissions policy for military spouses. For many states, the ability to allow special admission to military spouses has been facilitated by the reciprocity rules that exist between states, which allow an attorney to waive into the state (admitted on motion) based on admission in another state. California, however, does not have reciprocity with any other state, and does not currently have any special admissions rules unique to military spouses.

On August 17, 2018, this item was presented to the Board of Trustees’ Programs Committee as an informational item for their review and input. Staff discussed comments received from a working group of the California Commission on Access to Justice, the JD Military Spouse Network, and the Association of Corporate Counsel (ACC). ACC representatives also provided public comment during the meeting.

On August 24, 2018, staff presented the item to the Committee of Bar Examiners for their feedback.
DISCUSSION

Staff reviewed all special admissions rules to identify whether changes were needed to support increased access to legal services or for other reasons. The proposal has been revised since it was presented to the Programs Committee to incorporate the input of the Committee of bar Examiners, as well as the other input received to date.

This proposal recommends revisions to the RIHC, RLSA and RFLC Rules of Court and Rules of the State Bar, and proposes adopting a special admissions Rule of Court and Rules of the State Bar for Registered Military Spouse Attorneys.

The proposed modifications for the rules related to RIHC address the following areas:

- The size of the employer. Currently to qualify under the RIHC program, the applicant must be proposing to work for a corporation, partnership, association or other legal entity, that is not a government entity or an entity that provides legal services to others which employ 10 employees or a full time California attorney. Staff proposes to reduce the number of employees from 10 to 5, and to require an office located in California but not require all 5 employees to be located in California. The language was modified from the proposal presented to the Programs Committee in August to address concerns that having 5 California-based employees may place an unnecessary limitation on those who could qualify under the program.

- Defining “reside in California.” A definition has been added to Rules of the State Bar, rule 3.370 to clarify that the RIHC must live or be located in California on more than a temporary or transient basis.

- Status of attorney in their home state. Rules of Court, rule 9.46(a)(2)(C) makes eligible for participation in the RIHC program only those who have not been disbarred, have not resigned with charges pending and not having been “suspended.” The goal of this prohibition appears to be to restrict attorney applicants who have been disciplined in the state where they have practiced. Staff proposes to clarify that the attorney cannot have been suspended from practicing law for disciplinary misconduct; making eligible applicants who may have been administratively suspended for non-disciplinary actions, such as for non-payment of fees.

- Authority to provide pro bono services. Language was added to allow the RIHC the ability to provide pro bono services for eligible legal aid organizations or the institution that employs them. This eliminates the requirement to submit a separate application to serve as a registered legal services attorney (now to be referred to as a registered legal aid attorney, RLAA) and to pay registration fees for participation as an RLAA. The amendment also expressly permits the RIHC to provide pro bono services through his or her employer, not just through a legal aid agency. If the RIHC provides pro bono services, it must be performed under supervision of a California attorney.

- Fingerprinting. Rules of Court, rule 9.46(d)(1) is proposed to be amended to require all RIHC applicants to comply with the fingerprinting requirement of rule 9.9.5. The suspension and termination sections of the Rules of the State Bar have been revised to clarify that an attorney whose registration has been terminated is not permitted to practice law in California and needs to submit a new application and comply with Rules of Court, rule 9.9.5 to register as In-House Counsel.
Clarifications. The rules are clarified to distinguish between suspension and termination, and updated to reflect the terms “licensee” and “Board of Trustees.”

The proposed modifications for the rules related to the registered legal services attorney program address the following areas:

- Name change. These attorneys will be referred to as Registered Legal Aid Attorneys (RLAA).

- Definition of qualifying legal aid entity. The definition of qualifying legal service provider was modified to expand from only those eligible for IOLTA funding to more broadly include nonprofit legal aid entities and nonprofit law schools that provide civil legal aid. The proposal also removes the limitation that the entity be based solely in California.

- Status of attorney in their home state. The language in Rules of Court, rule 9.45(a)(2)(C) makes eligible for participation in the RLAA program only those who have not been disbarred, have not resigned with charges pending and not having been “suspended.” The goal of this prohibition appears to be to restrict attorney applicants who have been disciplined in the state where they have practiced. Staff proposes to clarify that the attorney cannot have been suspended from practicing law for disciplinary misconduct; making eligible applicants who may have been administratively suspended for non-disciplinary actions, such as for non-payment of fees.

- Length of Time as an RLAA. Rule of Court, rule 9.45(e) extends from three to five years the maximum period in which an individual may practice as an RLAA, thereby making it easier to continue serving in this role, and providing an incentive for individuals to apply for such a role. The rule also incentivizes future attempts to take and pass the California Bar Examination and admission to the State Bar of California.

- Expanding access to legal services. The proposed modifications address concerns that the existing rules limit an RLAA to providing services for one legal aid entity. Although requiring the RLAA to submit an application for each entity for which he or she will be working, the proposal seeks to expand access by allowing the RLAA the ability to work at multiple eligible legal aid organizations, as long as they are approved by the State Bar and the supervising attorney signs a declaration.

- Supervision of RLAA. The existing requirement for an RLAA to be supervised by a California-licensed attorney is intended to ensure public protection and prevent the Unauthorized Practice of Law by someone not admitted to the State Bar of California. The supervision provisions have been revised to clarify that the supervising attorney must approve in writing any appearance in court, deposition, arbitration or other proceeding to the extent required for the protection of the client or customer. Given the absence of a California law license and that this classification requires that the attorney is well-versed in local laws, applicable case law and rules regarding ethical conduct, supervision by a California licensed attorney is appropriate.

- Fingerprinting. Rules of Court, rule 9.45(d)(1) is proposed to be amended to require all RLAA applicants to comply with the fingerprinting requirement of rule 9.9.5. The suspension and termination sections of the Rules of the State Bar have been revised to clarify that an attorney whose registration has been terminated is not permitted to practice law in California and needs to submit a new application and comply with Rules of Court, rule 9.9.5 to register as a Legal Aid Attorney.
Clarifications. The rules are clarified to distinguish between suspension and termination, and updated to reflect the terms “licensee” and “Board of Trustees.”

The proposed new Registered Military Spouse Attorney Rule is drafted to largely conform with the RIHC and RLAA rules, and in that way does not adhere precisely to the model rule being circulated by the Military Spouse J.D. Network. The proposed rules address the following areas:

- The definition of spouse. The definition of spouse conforms to the California law, which allows civil unions and domestic partners the same liberties as spouses.
- Consistency with the RIHC and RLAA rules. Includes language to emphasize that pro bono work is allowed, as a means of encouraging military spouses to participate in this activity.
- The Registered Military Spouse Attorney must not have been disbarred, resigned with charges pending, or suspended from practicing law for disciplinary misconduct in any other jurisdiction. Also, once an applicant has registered and been accepted as a Military Spouse Attorney he/she may continue to take the bar exam without fear of losing eligibility.
- Requires supervision of an attorney who is an active licensee in good standing of the State Bar of California who has been admitted to the practice of law for two years or more.
- Unlike the RIHC and RLAA rules, the Military Spouse Attorney is permitted to practice law in California, under supervision, in all forms of legal practice that are permissible for a licensed attorney of the State Bar of California, including pro bono legal services.

The proposed revisions to the RFLC address the fingerprinting requirements and updating of terms.

In light of comments received, the following changes to the proposed rules have been made since the proposal was discussed with the Programs Committee on August 17:

- RIHC – Instead of requiring the qualifying institution to employ 5 full time employees in California or one attorney licensed in California, the qualifying institution must have an office in California as opposed to have the 5 full time employees employed in California. This will allow greater flexibility in meeting the definition of a “qualifying institution.”
- RIHC - The requirement that an RIHC may use “no other title” has been deleted.
- RIHC - “Reside in California” is defined to clarify that the attorney must live or be located in California on more than a temporary or transient basis.
- RIHC – Instead of requiring an RIHC who wants to practice pro bono work to submit a separate application and register as a Legal Aid Attorney, the RIHC will submit a supplemental form to the State Bar that identifies the organization and the name of the supervisor. This will inform the State Bar that the RIHC is practicing pro bono work and will ensure that there is supervision by a California attorney.
- RIHC, RLAA, Military Spouse and RFLC - The suspension and termination sections of the Rules of the State Bar have been revised to clarify that an attorney whose registration has been terminated is not permitted to practice law in California and needs to submit a new application and comply with Rules of Court, rule 9.9.5 to register again.
- RLAA – Replaced term “non-English speaking persons” with “limited English proficient persons.”
• RLAA – Clarified the qualifying supervising attorney declaration requirement so that the organization will notify the State Bar within 30 days of cessation of the applicant’s employment “with that employer.”
• Registered Military Spouse Attorney – Revised to provide that the registered military spouse attorney may continue to practice as a registered military spouse attorney for one year after the termination of the marriage, civil union, or registered domestic partnership.

Staff does not recommend removing the supervision requirement for the Registered Military Spouse Attorney. The proposed Rule of Court requires direct supervision, including approving in writing any appearance in court, deposition, arbitration, or any proceeding by the Registered Military Spouse Attorney, to the extent required for the protection of the client or customer. This allows flexibility in supervision based on the experience of the Register Military Spouse Attorney, while still providing public protection. The RIHC is not required to be supervised while providing legal services as an RIHC. However, the RIHC may only provide legal services for the qualifying institution that employs him or her and is not allowed to make court appearances. In contrast, the Registered Military Spouse Attorney may represent any client in any area of law in any proceeding. Some commenters suggested that the requirement that the special admissions attorneys must follow the Rules of Professional Conduct would provide adequate public protection. However, the Rules of Professional Conduct govern attorney ethics; they do not prevent unintentional attorney malpractice. Given the potential lack of experience with California law, staff recommends that the proposed supervision language for the Registered Military Spouse Attorney remain as a requirement in the Rule of Court.
